Sensible Advice.
C. P. Huntington, who after a phenomenal career in business became a Pacific railway president, through the columns of Success says these sensible words to boys and young men who are ambitious for honorable achievement: Advice is thrown away on a boy or young man who considers it beneath him to work at anything which hardens the hands or soils the garments, but who prefers a clerkship in a store or office at starvation wages. Good clothes should not be worn at the expense of a career. To the man who is not afraid of downright hard work, I would suggest frugality, investing surplus earnings, if only a dime a day, in a savings bank, and reading useful books during leisure hours.

The summer girl's cup of joy is the muschale cup. So, 34.

Ten Years Pain

"I am a school teacher, have suffered agony monthly for ten years. My nervous system was a wreck. I suffered with pain in my side and had almost every ill known. I had taken treatment from a number of physicians who gave me no relief. One specialist said no medicine could help me, I must submit to an operation. I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham, stating my case, and received a prompt reply. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and followed the advice given me and now I suffer no more. If any one cares to know more about my case, I will cheerfully answer all letters."—MISS EDNA ELLIS, Highland, Ohio.

Negroes Dragged From Cabs, Houses and Stores, Women Beaten and Men Shot, Stabbed and Clubbed—The Outbreak Lasted Nearly Six Hours—Quelled by Police Reserves.

New York City (Special).—A race war as fierce as it was sudden raged along the west side of this city between Thirtieth and Forty-fifth streets and along Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and Ninth avenues Wednesday night. It called for the services of 700 policemen, commanded by Chief Devery in person, and for six hours there was virtually a reign of terror such as has never been seen in New York since the Draft Riot days of war times.

The air was filled with shots; negroes were attacked on street cars and dragged from bicycles in the streets. They were pounded and beaten, in some instances into insensibility, and the police were at times wholly unable to afford protection or to control the mad, sweeping fury of the mob. The riot was the result of the killing on Sunday of Policeman Robert J. Thorpe, of the West Thirty-seventh street station by a negro, Arthur Harris. A wake over Thorpe's body was in progress. Feeling against the negroes in the neighborhood of Thorpe's late home had been at white heat for a couple of days.

A drunken negro pulled a revolver on two white women, friends of Thorpe's family, who were standing in front of the Thorpe house. That started the trouble, which spread like wildfire. Over two hundred negroes were badly beaten. They were dragged from street cars, pelted with stones, beaten, kicked and jumped upon.

Saloons were closed by orders of the police, and merchants, alarmed by the crashing of bullets through windows, were forced to close their stores. At midnight the rioting had spread to dozens of points along the entire west side from Twenty-third to Fifty-fifth streets. It was a scene to remind the sober, staid citizens of New York of the outbreaks in the South and Southwest that drew virtuous anger from Northern cities.

Clubs were used until the policemen were almost exhausted. Revolvers were emptied into the air, and in one or two instances fired at the upper stories of the negro tenements, from which the negroes defensively fired bricks, paving stones and other missiles. That many negroes were not killed outright is miraculous, for the mob at times was frenzied.

Cars in Broadway and Eighth avenue were stopped by the mob and terror-stricken negroes dragged bodily to the street, where they were kicked and beaten. Terrorized negroes, pursued by the mob, took refuge in many of the Broadway hotels. Pistols, razors, clubs, bottles and stones were freely used by both negroes and whites. Store windows were broken by flying missiles.

Even the negro women caught in the streets suffered at the hands of the mob. Police reserves were called out from every station between Charles street and West 125th street. Inspector Thompson at first took charge, but was soon relieved by Chief Devery when the magnitude of the war was realized. Soon after his arrival Chief Devery ordered out the reserves from four east side stations.

In Eighth avenue alone there were eight ambulances stationed to care for the wounded, and 150 policemen were scattered along the few blocks. Police Captain Cooney and two policemen were wounded, one of them Kennedy, the partner of the murdered Thorpe, was fatally cut with a razor.

Saloons in the vicinity of the rioting were closed by the police. This threw into the streets hundreds of half-intoxicated men, who hastened to swell the ranks of the rioters. Through the effective work of the police the rioting was quelled and the throngs dispersed about 2 o'clock a. m. At least sixty negroes were wounded, several of them probably fatally.

A general order was issued early in the morning suspending all "days off" for policemen, and directing them to remain in the stations when off duty in order to be prepared for any further outbreaks.

They Jump Into a Lake and Rescue a Young Man From Drowning.
Wilkes-Barre, Penn. (Special).—Misses Helen and Janet Jones, sisters, teachers in the public schools of Scranton, are spending their vacation at Harvey's Lake. They were walking along the shore when they heard the cries of a young man in the water. The Misses Jones are swimmers. They have jumped into the water and in a short time were beside the drowning youth. He proved to be Harry Weller, aged fifteen. He was tall and heavy for his age and the girls had trouble in getting him to shore.

The Wolf-Bog of the North. Neck, from head to shoulders, a mass of bristling hair, sharp-pointed ears, long-snouted, lips snarling, fangs dripping; yelping rather than barking; wolfish of aspect and not nice to look upon when in anger—this is the husky, or wolf-dog of the North. Much has been said of the Klondike, but these magnificent brutes, which in the beginning made that frigid El Dorado possible, have received little more than passing comment. Nor has this neglect been due to their being out of the humble servants of the master, man. They are far from humble, as their wild ancestry attests. They may be beaten into submission, but that will not prevent them still snarling their hatred. They may be starved into apparent docility and then die suddenly, with teeth fast locked in a brother's throat, torn to pieces by their comrades. Rather, has little attention been accorded them because the interest of man has gravitated inexorably toward the natural, mineral and social features of that far-northerly land.

But the husky is far from uninteresting. As a type of endurance, no better evolved product of natural selection need be sought. If ever a species has been born and bred of hard times, it has. Only the fittest, in a hard struggle for existence extending through a thousand generations, have survived. And they are well fit. Demolished by the savage autochthons of that forbidding region, they may not only account their remote ancestors as wild wolves, but often their immediate forebears.—Harper's Weekly.

BILE IN THE BLOOD

No matter how pleasant your surroundings, health, good health, is the foundation for enjoyment. Bowel trouble causes more aches and pains than all other diseases together, and when you get a good dose of bilious bile coursing through the blood life's a hell on earth. Millions of people are doctoring for chronic ailments that started with bad bowels, and they will never get better till the bowels are right. You know how it is—you neglect—get irregular—first suffer with a slight headache—bad taste in the mouth mornings, and general "all gone" feeling during the day—keep on going from bad to worse until the suffering becomes awful, life loses its charms, and there is many a one that has been driven to suicidal relief. Educate your bowels with CASCARETS. Don't neglect the slightest irregularity. See that you have one natural, easy movement each day. CASCARETS tone the bowels—make them strong—and after you have used them once you will wonder why it is that you have ever been without them. You will find all your other disorders commence to get better at once, and soon you will be well by taking—
